By The G-Force |Comments Off on G-Force: Video Game MovieThe present invention relates generally to the field of high speed manufacture of articles and methods. In particular, the present invention relates to a novel method and apparatus for manufacturing co-fired conductive and non-conductive ceramic articles. Co-firing of two or more materials has long been a desirable manufacturing technique. For example, in an evaporation-deposition process to form conductive ceramic green tape, it is desirable to deposit a plurality of ceramic materials, which may all have a common crystalline form, but which are dissimilar in any other way, such as porosity. For the green tape to have good conductivity, however, the ceramic materials must be co-fused during the sintering process to produce the finished article. Co-firing can generally be accomplished by firing the green tape in a single step, but this requires that all materials be fired to substantially the same temperature. In a single-step co-firing process, however,
