----- Who are you? ??? - The Forgotten People. Where are you from? We are the Forgotten People and we come from this area. Why do you look like an adult earth dragon? We were cursed with a rare type of dragon, an adult earth dragon. This dragon has a very special, unique and dangerous gift. We did not know how this would affect us, and did not want to have a dragon as a children. Therefore, the dragon was taken away from us by a wizard and abandoned. The dragon was trained in combat and over time it became an adult earth dragon. When it was too big for its cage, we finally managed to free the dragon. When we were on our way to the mountains, the dragon understood that this was our home and chose to stay with us. We were very angry and tried to run away but the dragon was very fast and we could not catch him. After we decided to free the dragon, the dragon started to wander around the mountains, but it was in deep slumber and did not get into any trouble. The dragon did not stay in one place for too long, and when we wanted to stop him he would flee into the mountains. After we found the dragon, we decided to bring him back to the village and this was when we realized that he has a very special gift. When we asked the dragon about this gift, he chose not to tell us. We tried to take away his gift, but even one bite would kill the dragon. We could not save the dragon and we decided to put him into a grave. After that we started to travel, but the dragon kept following us. One day, the dragon caught up with us and did not want to let us go. We fought the dragon, he bit us and drank the dragon blood. And then he said. You are one of us and he must be put back into the dragon's grave. This curse was so great that the dragon could not stop. He was able to change into an adult earth dragon. The dragon is a very strong and wise dragon, but the cursed one is stronger and more powerful. We have learned how to fight him, and we fight him on a regular basis. He never sleeps so we must be careful when we are around him.

wrote: I may have had a bit of assistance from blagofspring... it is amazing what it does to the ego. blagofspring wrote: Not to be mean or anything, but I was confused on why you quoted me as a source within your own quote. Thanks blagofspring and shepherd of light, I guess it doesn't hurt to explain it. After reading his article i looked more closely at the quote I pasted into the first post, so I do find it funny. "I think it's fair to say that any Christian in the old Middle Ages didn't need any special means to figure out the Old Testament. There are over 3000 verses there that are quoted in the New Testament. In fact, one of the first verses mentioned in the Christian Bible is the verse where the New Testament begins, John 1:1. If I were a Christian in the Old Testament, I would have read the words to John 1:1 many times by now and memorized them, even if I hadn't gone to a seminary. This would be the language into which I would be mentally translating and understanding the rest of the Bible into my mind." blagofspring wrote: "So, what does this mean? This means that lots of Christians back in Old Testament time had memorized all the big themes and concepts of the Old Testament. You don't have to go to a seminary, you don't have to do an online course in church history, and you probably haven't read the bible in quite a while. But to every tiny bit of information one shares about the Bible, the Bible works Actually, I'm talking about using the Bible as a guide to lead you into the deeper understanding of yourself. In this context it means using scriptures to help you write songs for a band. If you find the exact right verses it really helps you along the path. Here is an exerpt from a chapter from Word Power Music by Ron Harris "From the beginning of recorded history, the true basis of all ho=wk we were equipped for in order to be able to connect with our purpose in the universe, our Areliving bible. We were given a history of God's Redeemer. God's Son. God's U-series. God's name; Jesus- which are all the commands of the old and the spiritually powerful presentations upon the new memory system

Leslie1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates generally to digital circuits. More particularly, the present invention relates to a method and system for emulating the operation of two state, bistable flip-flops. 2. Description of the Related Art A number of electronic devices include bistable flip-flops. Bistable flip-flops typically have two stable states, each of which may represent 0 and 1. A bistable flip-flop generally has the characteristic that the flip-flop is in one stable state until a clock pulse is applied to change the state to the second stable state. If the clock pulse is not applied, then the flip-flop continues to remain in the second stable state. There are a number of different applications for bistable flip-flops. In particular, bistable flip-flops may be used in a digital storage element of a bistable memory element. For example, a bistable memory element such as a magnetoresistive device is typically a memory element that stores a first state when in a first magnetic field and a second state when in a second magnetic field. For example, U.S. Pat. No. 5,452,268 to Cleland et al. describes how a magnetoresistive device may be a memory element. In Cleland, a magnetoresistive device is memory element that stores a first magnetization state in a first magnetic field and a second magnetization state in a second magnetic field.
