Q: Batch Edit Multiple Images per row I'm working on a project for a client where i'm attempting to batch edit a large number of images, and i'd like to know if there's an easier way to do this. Currently I've been having to manually edit all of the images by clicking in the programmable edit bar and editing the info in the edit bar and in the file info window. If there's a way to edit all of the images at once in a single batch process, that would be great. Here's an image of what I mean:

A: This tutorial might help Basically you can add a batch.

Q: Is there a program to scan https websites and play song using Chrome I am a html programmer, so I would like to know if there is a web-app or chrome extension that will let me scan an https site, and play the song using chrome. For example, if I scan i should be able to play Oracle's JDK 8 Update 41 in my browser.

A: You can use the Google Chrome extension Play Music to do this. It offers a bookmarklet that will open a music website in the associated tab. For example, when you click the bookmarklet, it opens a new tab with a link to Open a Google Chrome browser Click the bookmarklet icon Copy-paste the URL found at the end of the above URL. Open the new tab to the target website.
